By Appointment.

Hereford Cathedral, the centre of the ancient See of Hereford, was founded by Bishop Athelstan in the eleventh century, on the site of former buildings, being finished and consecrated in 1110. Many additions were made at various dates up to the sixteenth century. It is a most beautiful and noteworthy building, containing many tombs of great interest and various quaint relics of the past, among others a Map of the World drawn in the thirteenth century. The tower is 165 feet high.

Dear Edith. many thanks for your letter I hope you will excuse long delay in replying but have been very busy, as usual !! I am glad to hear you are having a nice time I also hope you are favoured with better weather than we are experiencing here - very unsettled & rainy for the time of year, I must arrange to see Keeper when you come back, if it would suit you I could meet you at Ryde & bring you home afterwards. Love to all.

Yours affec. Doris.
